LETTER OF SUPPORT

Board of Directors
Delta Sigma Pi

I am pleased to provide this Letter of Support on behalf of the Office of the Dean of The Eli Broad College of Business for the reactivation of the Gamma Kappa Chapter of the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi at Michigan State University.

An interested group of students, with support from several alumni of the inactive chapter, has worked diligently to build a membership base and complete other requirements for reactivation. The Broad College has an enrollment of approximately 5000 undergraduate students; they should benefit by having an active chapter of Delta Sigma Pi on this campus.

Thank you for your consideration.

March 1, 1995

Dear Fellow Board Members,

I would like to take this opportunity to support the petition of the Nu Gamma Kappa Colony at Michigan State University.

In December of 1993 I was asked to assist the Colony as their District Director. Immediately it brought back all of the memories of when I was in the Colony at Western Michigan University. This was a great opportunity to share my experiences and try to get them on their way to Brotherhood. I worked very closely with the 15 members and provided them with as much information as possible. In the Summer of 1994 I accepted the appointment of Huron Regional Director and still maintained the contact with the colony quite frequently. That summer I told all of the Officers that I was going to step out of the picture for a while and observe how they functioned on their own. I was very pleased to see their progress on the occasional visits to the campus for the general business meetings.

The Nu Gamma Kappa Colony has worked very hard this past year to meet the requirements to become a chapter. The calendar of events will show that the colony is involved in various activities and there are still many more great events to come. With all of the support from the alumni of the Gamma Kappa Chapter and the other regional chapters they will have no problem adjusting to Chapter life. I will be proud to call these individuals Brother when they become the reactivated Gamma Kappa Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

Fraternally,

Erin E. Campbell
Huron Regional Director

Dear Board of Directors:

As an alumna of the Gamma Kappa Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi at Michigan State University, I am very pleased to see the efforts on the part of the students of the Eli Broad College of Business to reactivate the Chapter. I recognize, approve and support their application.

Recently, several Alumni Brothers and I had the opportunity to participate in a Nu Gamma Kappa Colony business meeting. We were all impressed by the enthusiasm and participation of the young men and women involved in this Colony.

My son Jay, as president of the Nu Gamma Kappa Colony, has been intensely involved in this reactivation effort. His involvement has given me the opportunity to meet one on one or in small group situations with many of the students. Their demonstrated interest and dedication certainly supports a successful chapter.

As past president of the Gamma Kappa Chapter at Michigan State, 1966 - 1967, and a business owner, I have benefited greatly from my involvement in Delta Sigma Pi. Reactivation of the Gamma Kappa Chapter will create the opportunity for future students to benefit from this Fraternal experience.

Fraternally,

Dear Board of Directors:

What a pleasure it is to be able to write to voice my support to the reactivation efforts of Nu Gamma Kappa Colony at Michigan State University!

Our Alumni group made this a priority when we formed in the Spring of 1994. I was pleased to be part of the group that sought and obtained permission from the Dean of The College of Business to begin reactivation efforts.

The East Lansing Alumni Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi has supported Nu Gamma Kappa from its inception, and is pledged to continue support as our Colony becomes once again Gamma Kappa Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi!

MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

East Lansing began as a small row of houses occupied by the faculty of the early Michigan Agricultural College, which has since evolved into Michigan State College, and is now commonly known as Michigan State University. All that is left of this early community is "Cowles House," which has been home to the many presidents of MSU since 1941.

James DeLoss Towar was a central figure in the founding of East Lansing. He remembers each of these people on "Faculty Row" as people with the highest of moral and religious ideals. Many early faculty members were, in fact, ordained ministers.

" These ideals, as well as the self-conscious "good example" were to become the important aspects of the new community which was to emerge."

Professor of Botany William J. Beal is accredited for the first subdivision in East Lansing in 1887, resulting from his real estate venture. However, it's intended purpose was not served. It was supposed to be faculty housing but became a dwelling for laborers and teamsters. It eventually became rental housing for students as it is today. A large portion of the current MSU campus was at one time a massive subdivision of tiny lots but has since been engulfed by the University.

The 1920's was a time of increased growth for East Lansing. This was primarily due to increases in student enrollment during this period. At one time (1925), it was even suggested that Lansing and East Lansing merge to become one. At this time the two towns had not physically met, but the growing number of subdivisions in and around the area seemed to indicate that it would eventually happen.

1927 was the peak of the "building boom" of East Lansing and the city began requiring fire proof construction of new buildings. Only one month later a fire engulfed the offices of Faunce - Schepers Real Estate and Insurance office and East Lansing Electric. Also, a building containing many of the city's documents was destroyed in the blaze.

In these early days, the high ideals of the original community remained. There was even controversy over whether to allow a movie theatre into the community. City council member Mrs. Frank Chamberlain was opposed to the development of this type in worries that it would damage the integrity of the town. She and others would, without a doubt, be suprised at the current East Lansing with its scatter of restaurants, taverns, and establishments geared toward the entertainment of local college students. East Lansing wanted the world to be a better place and believed the first step to doing this should be taken at home.

East Lansing continued to grow at a rapid pace and in one issue of the State News, the MSU newspaper, it read , "East Lansing is attracting national interest as being the fastest growing city or town in the country." Michigan State University and East Lansing grew in unison and it's physical boundaries eventually met Lansing. However, East Lansing remains a unique community in which students, faculty, and residents are active in the community, and has become the exciting, educated, and friendly place it is today.

It is not certain what the future will hold for East Lansing. It is likely that the explosive growth era is over. However, many students choose to stay in the area after their four to five year experience at MSU. New and unique businesses continue to appear and disappear. In closing, Lawrence Kestenbaum states...

"East Lansingites will continue the long tradition of municipal idealism which has taken them so far since the inception of this unique community."

In 1850 the Michigan State Agricultural Society petitioned the state Legislature of Michigan for an agricultural college. On February 12, 1855, Governor Kinsley S. Bingham signed the law that founded the Agricultural College of Michigan. The college formally opened on May 13, 1857, with an enrollment of 63 students, 5 faculty members, and Joseph R. Williams as its first president.

In 1862, President Abraham Lincoln signed the Morrill Act, which provided land grants to support colleges ". . . where the leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts . . . in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and the pioneer land-grant colleges and universities.

As the years passed, the college grew, and the faculty, curriculum and enrollment expanded. Engineering was added in 1885, home economics in 1896, veterinary medicine in 1909, and business administration in 1925. The college, in 1925, changed its name to Michigan State College of Agriculture and Applied Science. In 1955, its centennial year, it was re-named Michigan State University of Agriculture and Applied Science.

Today, students attending Michigan State University have a choice of 14 colleges: Agriculture and Natural Resources, Arts and Letters, Eli Broad College of Business and Graduate School of Business Administration, Communication Arts and Sciences, Education, Engineering, Human Ecology, Human Medicine, James Madison (Political Sciences), Natural Science, Nursing, Osteopathic Medicine, Social Science and Veterinary Medicine. The University attracts students from all over the country, and from around the world.

In February, 1994 the current President, Peter McPherson, gave us six principles which would provide "the framework for a practical vision." The principles are,

- Improve access to quality education and expert knowledge.
- Achieve more active learning.
- Generate new knowledge and scholarship across the mission.
- Promote problem solving to help address societies needs.
- Advance diversity within the community.
- Make people matter.

Michigan State University has grown from a college with 63 students and 5 faculty members, to a major university with a student population of 39,743 and over 4,000 faculty members in 1993. MSU has had many great accomplishments and we at the Nu Gamma Kappa Colony of Delta Sigma Pi are proud and honored to be attending this great institution.

Eli Broad

College of Business

The School of Business and Public Service was assembled as of the academic year 1944-45. The school was comprised of departments such as physical education, journalism, social service, police administration, as well as hotel and business administration. These disciplines were too unrelated to provide an education with association. However, this title, The School of Business and Public Service, remained for twenty years. The non-business departments had 'split' away by the academic year 1963-64. The School of Business and Public Service became the college of Business. Departments such as accounting, economics, management, marketing, and business law made up this College of Business.

This donation established The Eli Broad College of Business and The Eli Broad Graduate School of Management. The Eli Broad College of Business has since been known for excellence. It has been ranked as one of the top forty business programs in the country by both Business Week and US News & World Report. The Department of Marketing and Logistics Management is ranked seventh in undergraduate education in the 1993 Gourman Report, which is a rating of undergraduate programs in American and international universities, and ranked number two by US News and World Report. The undergraduate accounting program is ranked number six in the country by Public Accounting Report. The Department of Marketing and Logistics Management is ranked seventh in undergraduate education in the 1993 Gourman Report. The organizational behavior faculty within the department of Management has been ranked in the top five in scholarly productivity in the United States by the Journal of Psychology. The Department of Economics is ranked in the top 25 out of the 150 Ph.D. granting economics programs in the country by the National Research Council. The Broad college has an office of Minority Business Programs and has more minority students enrolled than any other business school in the Big Ten. The Department of General Business and Business Law tenured faculty all graduated from nationally recognized law schools. The donation, staff, and dedication have created a college of excellence. This college of excellence is The Eli Broad College of Business.

NU GAMMA KAPPA COLONY

The Nu Gamma Kappa Colony began during the fall semester of 1993 when Jay Farner became interested in the fraternity after he spoke with some of the Alumni from the Gamma Kappa Chapter. They were at Michigan State University holding a chapter reunion.

In January of the next semester, the first open meeting was held on campus and from this meeting a small group of hard workers originated. They met with Fred Lipsey during the next few months and began to set up offices and develop strategies to increase membership and public awareness.

As the semester continued, membership grew and colony activities increased. Colony field trips were taken to the Gamma Theta Chapter at Wayne State, the Xi Chapter at Michigan, and the Lambda Xi Chapter at Grand Valley State. These trips helped the new officers of the colony learn more about their positions and about the general mission of Delta Sigma Pi.

On April 10, a professional event, describing expectations of the business world, was held. This event was open to all business students and proved to be a great success. Later that month the first annual Nu Gamma Kappa Car Wash was held which resulted in a profit of one hundred dollars.

During the summer, a newsletter was sent to all members. Some of the colony members attended a white water rafting trip with the Gamma Theta Chapter. The colony also made a pilgrimage to Cedar Point Amusement Park in Sandusky, Ohio.

Fall of 1994 was filled with activities. The colony participated in many professional events, including presentations from the accounting firm of Deloitte and Touche, Redwood and Ross, and Robert Poole of the Career Services Department at Michigan State. The fraternity also took a tour of the Leelenau Wine Cellars in Traverse City, Michigan.

In October, the colony planted daffodils and tulips as a fund raising event for Landequities company. One of the key visitors during fall semester was Kathy Dinius, Chapter Consultant from the Central Office. She helped get the colony organized and prepare them for the upcoming semester. During the Christmas season we adopted a family and later decided to keep the family as a continuing community service activity. Colony elections were held in December to allow the new officers an opportunity to develop their plans for the following semester.

Spring Semester of 1995 began with an executive meeting that was held on January 15th. The officers used this meeting to exchange ideas and develop a game plan for the upcoming semester. On January 18th, the first general meeting was held with the primary item of business being a discussion of the upcoming trip to Chicago.

In Chicago, the colony visited a CPA accounting firm and the National Futures Association. By visiting both of these firms, colony members increased their knowledge of what it is like to work in a business corporation. They were given tips on creating a well written resume, interviewing, and business etiquette. After touring these companies, colony members took advantage of being in the "windy city." Members wandered around the Magnificent Mile and experienced the night life.

On January 29, the colony had a Super Bowl party.

During the first two weeks of February, we set up recruiting tables in the business college and advertised our resume workshop on that was held on February 1st. We then mailed over two thousand fliers to business students to let them know about the informational meeting that was held on the 7th.

The 11th of February the colony participated in a community service event and then had a bowling party. This allowed many new members to get to know everyone better. Then on February 15th we had a semi-formal dinner at the Pretzel Bell.

On February 22, an executive meeting was held and then a general meeting followed. At this time we discussed the upcoming month and the fact that we felt we had a good chance of becoming a chapter.
